IMPROVING THE QUALITY OF RESEARCH AND CREATION OF NEW KNOWLEDGE: STRATEGIES FOR IMPROVING RESEARCH CULTURE

November 30, 2020

Organized by

Internal Quality Assurance Cell (IQAC),
St. Philomena College (Autonomous) Mysore

Preamble

Research in any discipline of thought is an ongoing process of enhancing the existing fund of knowledge by exploring new frontiers that challenge the human quest for understanding reality. The question of the quality of research underscores whether the research in any branch enriches knowledge ecosystem in a significant manner. The question of the quality of research has become the centre of academic, professional, and higher education policy debates all over the world.

The Indian University System comprises social, linguistic, regional, economical, locational (metropolitan, urban, mofussil, tribal), infrastructural (rich, moderate, poor) and aspirational (International, National, and Regional) diversities prevailing across the country. These diversities are reflected in the student and teacher composition that influence teaching and research activity. The question of quality of research in India has to be situated in this complex social milieu and it has come to the fore due to enormous growth of research which is produced mainly as a part of doctoral research during the last few decades. The growth in numbers and the subsequent issues of the quality of research output call for a comprehensive review of the existing situation and to suggest corrective measures to be taken to improve the state of research in India.
